By The Associated Press

The nation's strike lines shrank slightly below 400,000 today, the lowest in several weeks, as the commonwealth of Massachusetts seized strikebound street railways, and New York longshoremen looped back to work.

Major unsettled labor difficulties included some 200,000 miners in 37 states, 61,000 northwest lumber workers, although there are prospects of settlement here and 3,000 to 7,000 movie workers. The balance of the 700,000 was spread over 32 states.

Gov Maurice J Tobin of Massachusetts ordered state seizure of the eastern Massachusetts street railways when a strike of 1,800 employes tied up transportation for more than 1,000,000 patrons. Tobin acted under special emergency powers granted by the state legislature at the outbreak of the war. He appointed Frank Murray, former Boston corporation counsel, to run the lines.

Will Not Be Operated

The governor said, however, that nothing would be done to operate the lines until the 10 striking locals vote on a return to work today. Issue in the strike is a pay boost from 97 cents to $1.25 hourly, for drivers.

In New York John A. Burke, U S conciliation commissioner, said the longshoremen's 14-day wild strike was "definitely over," but H R Colwell, regional director of the service modified his to a hope the men would return today.

The strike centered about the men's demand that a standardized weight of cargo net loadings be included in a new contract with the New York Shipping association.

An early end to the AFL northwest lumber workers walkout was forecast in Union circles, and union officials said a meeting tomorrow with the Williamette Valley Lumber Operators association could mean the beginning of the end of the strike.

One issue is a union demand for an industry-wide scale of $1.10 an hour.

Coal Is Sore Spot

The sorest spot in the labor picture continued to be the walkout of 200,000 coal miners in a dispute over recognition of a foremen's organization affiliated with John L Lewis United Mine Workers.

Operators and union chiefs resumed conferences in Washington over the issue which has steel production sharply and forced layoffs in several steel areas. West Virginia and Pennsylvania were the hardest hit of the six states, the others being Kentucky, Ohio, Tennessee and Indiana.

The other major strike settled

Wainwright Forces Wage Heroic Fight in Bataan Jungles

(Following are the eighth and ninth articles of a series by Gen Jonathan M Wainwright in which the Hero of Bataan and Corregidor tells for the first time the tragic circumstances that led to the fall of the Philippines and the capture of himself and nearly 70,000 loyal followers. In the eighth article he describes the rest of the historic retreat to Bataan, the beginning of Bataan's hardships and his meeting with Gen Douglas MacArthur on the emnattled peninsula. In the ninth article tells the graphic story of four Jap assaults on his rear seaward flank and how this tatterdmalion forces stood off the challenge.)

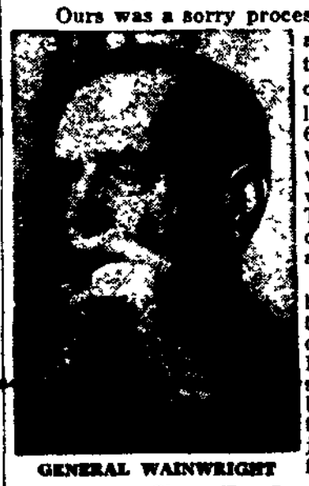
INSTALLMENT NO. 8

AT LAST on the morning of January 6, 1942, we reached Bataan—the peninsula that was to become a symbol of forlorn hope.

The long days and nights of the withdrawal from the north had cut my original North Luzon force of 28,000 men to about 16,000, and these were in pitiable condition to start what must now be the ultmiate defense of the Philippines.

Ours was a sorry procession into Bataan, but awful as it was, it was preferable to the hideous Death March out of Bataan, three months later. However, an January 6 I had no way of knowing what the Death March would be like or that it would even come to pass. The march into Bataan was depressing enough to behold and consider.



GENERAL WAINWRIGHT

My Filipino troops had been shod in their conventional sneakers at the start of the campaign in the north. But the fighting in razor-sharp jungle grass, and endless road-pounding during the long withdrawal, had just about cut the sneakers from their feet.

Shoes Too Small for Filipinos

Through Col. Beebe, MacArthur's supply officer, I had been able to get a store of Army shoes late during the withdrawal. But the designer of the American Army shoes had no Filipino soldier's foot in mind. The average Filipino goes barefooted most of his life, so that his foot becomes as broad as a bear's paw. My men tried to struggle into the hard, narrow (for them) American shoes. Some managed to get them on, but most of them simply threw away what was left of their sneakers, tied the Army shoes together by the strings, slung them over their rifles or packs, and walked into Bataan barefooted.

The men who filed into Bataan in the dark of January 6 were a pathetic lot. Some came in silent, blacked-out buses. But most of them came stumbling down the main highway from San Fernando, heavy with weariness and steeped in the knowledge that they were walking into little more than a trap.

It was, in short, a sickening experience to withdraw into the peninsula. I issued the order with the greatest of sorrow.

Losses Nearly 40 Per Cent

Of the units I had lost en route, the largest was Col. Bonnett's command, cut off between Baguio and the Bued River, and the forces of Cols. Moses, Noble and Maj. Ganahl, in all about 4,000 men. As for the others, who brought my total withdrawal losses up to nearly 40 per cent, they died gamely, were wounded and sent to the rear—or, in rare cases, deserted.

MacArthur now put me in charge of what was called the I Philippine Corps, charged with defending the left, or western, side of a line which ran across Bataan between Moron, on the China Sea, to Abucay on Manila Bay. The eastern, or right, side of the line was manned by Maj. Gen. George M. Parker's II Corps. Parker made his headquarters below Orion, on Manila Bay; I made mine near Bagac, on the other coast of Bataan.

Under me now I had the First Philippine division, the Thirty-First, Seventy-First and Ninety-First divisions, the hard-fighting Forty-Fifth Infantry regiment of Philippine Scouts, what was left of the Twenty-Sixth Cavalry and six 155 mm. guns.

Separated by Jungle Wall

Dividing my I Corps and Parker's II Corps was the 3,620-foot Mount Silanganan, a steep jungle wall that Indorsements of the Jobs and Progress plan and contributions to the campaign fund continue to pour in at the headquarters of the Marion Civic Planning group, today's records show. Among the most recent groups to register approval is the City Council P.-T A., whose members indorsed the project and made a contribution of $100 to the campaign.

The Federation of Musicians made a contribution of $10 and the Edison P.-T. A. a contribution of $5 to the campaign fund.

By The Associated Press

He said they should start leaving as soon as they were relieved by Chinese central government forces.

1 DEAD, 2 HURT IN TRUCK FIRE NEAR MARION

Youth from Near Mt. Vernon Dies, Bride and Brother Seriously Burned.

Garold Barnett, 18, of near Mt. Vernon, a bridegroom of five weeks, died at 3 15 a m today in City hospital of burns suffered in a truck accident yesterday afternoon on Route 95 about eight miles east of Marion.

His bride, Katherine, 18, and a brother, Sam, 23, with him at the time, were severely burned and their condition is reported to be "fair" by hospital attendants today.

According to friends Barnett had just passed his pre-induction physical at Ft. Hayes, Columbus last Tuesday and was awaiting his notice to report to the Army. His brother Sam, was reported to be home on a furlough.

Near Morrow Co. Line

The light pick-up truck was traveling east, state patrolmen reported today and Garold, who was driving, apparently lost control when about 500 feet east of the Marion-Morrow county line. The truck swerved to the left and overturned into the ditch on the north side of the road. Patrolmen believed that gasoline from the tank under the seat, splashed on the hot engine when the vehicle crashed and ignited.

According to reports, Sam was standing in the rear of the truck. Garold was thrown clear but not before his clothing caught fire. The brother helped extinguish his own flaming clothes, then helped Mrs Barnett. Both went to the aid of Garold, who was stunned by the impact, and extinguished his burning clothing. Garold suffered third degree burns on the face, arms and legs. Mrs. Barnett was burned about the face, body and legs and the brother, Sam, was burned on the hands and on the legs. The three were taken to City hospital by passing motorists. The truck, patrolmen said, was destroyed.

Had Visited Mother

Friends reported today that the three had been among members of the family who had attended a birthday party yesterday for the men's mother, Mrs. Fonnie Barnett of Green Camp.

Barnett is the son of W. H. Barnett of West Virginia and Mrs Barnett of Green Camp. He was born July 10, 1927, in Marengo, Morrow county. He was married about five weeks ago to Katherine Warman, daughter of Mr and Mrs. J. S. Warman of Mt Vernon.

Barnett is survived by his wife, his parents, four brothers, Earl and Sam in the Armed forces, Oliver and Herman of Galion, three sisters, Mrs Lola Taylor of Ada, O., Mrs Merkie Osborn of Pounding Mill, Va., and Ileen of Green Camp.

He attended schools in Morrow and Knox county. He returned from West Virginia about 5 years ago, where he had been living, and was employed since then as a tenant-farmer for Russell Martin, manager of the Lakeholm Farms of near Mt. Vernon. Mr. Martin was also his guardian, it was reported.

The body was taken to the Dowds Funeral Home in Mt Vernon pending funeral arrangements.

Workers in the 1945 Victory War Chest campaign took to the field again today in the drive to raise $90 000 to finance Marion county's share in the National War Chest and carry on the work of the agencies making up the Marion Community Foundation, Inc.

Topping the $50,000 mark at tomorrow night's report meeting is the goal of the workers in opening of the second week of the campaign. Reports of the various divisions and teams will be made at the second report meeting at 6.30 p. m. Tuesday at the Masonic temple. E. L. Cleveland, president of the Community Foundation, will preside.

The drive opened last Tuesday and at the first report meeting held Thursday night, more than $12,000 had been raised, the reports showed.

Jap Demobilization Ends; Democratic Rule Pushed

No Combat Force in Islands for First Time in History; Evidence of New Atrocity Produced.

By RUSSELL BRINES

Associated Press Staff Writer

TOKYO, Oct. 15—Japan slipped into military oblivion today as its demobilization was completed on schedule, and for the first time in history these islands held no combat military forces, either in fact or in name.

As the fighting force of 7,000,000 soldiers and sailors at home and abroad were reduced to nothing, the translation and interrogation section of allied headquarters produced evidence Japanese troops had used live Allied prisoners in bayonet practice on Guadalcanal and in China.

With the exit of the defeated, discredited warlords, Japanese political leaders stepped onto the national stage to put into effect a list of Democratic principles prescribed by Allied headquarters.

Prince Fumimaro Konoye, one of Emperor Hirotiho's close advisors, said in an interview that "his majesty is anxious that revisions be made" in the constitution to bring about the reforms decreed by headquarters.

Curb Royal Power

Konoye, who was boomed as the head of a new political party, added that constitutional revisions under consideration would curb Hirohito's almost unlimited power over his 77,000,000 subjects and give the diet some supervision over expenditures of the imperial household.

Japan's incubator of imperialistic schemes since 1873, the imperial general staff headquarters, was dissolved formally yesterday and the general staff went out of office today, in accord with Potsdam Declaration terms.

The army and navy ministers continued to do business as "ministries for demobilization."

Allied headquarters announced General MacArthur would broadcast to the United States at 8 a m tomorrow (6 p. m. today, eastern standard time) on "military phases of the occupation."

About 30,000 naval officers and men are remaining on duty to complete final details of demobilization, including the transfer of equipment and arms to the Americans which probably will be finished next month. Another 30,000 will man the ships that will bring home the Japanese overseas force.

Diet Is Called

Domei agency announced, on extraordinary five-day session of the diet had been called to start Nov. 10 to consider future administrative policies.

While Premier Kijuro Shidehara's cabinet tussled with the problem of drafting constitutional revision decrees in line with MacArthur's directives, political leaders preoccupied with plans for party organizations.

to communist anti-imperialists, and Japanese observers predicted the midwinter general election campaign may be marked by violence.

Ichiro Hatoyama, veteran politician, has announce a "New Japan Liberal Party" which opposes the planned-economy program of the "Japan Social Party" headed by Toyohoko Kagawa, Christian liberal and Isoo Abe.

Communist leader Yoshio Shiga, recently released under MacArthur's orders freeing Japanese political prisoners, was reported by Domei agency to be urging establishment of a democracy "in the American way."

A source close to the throne said Emperor Hirohito, aware of reports he contemplates abdication, has made no comment.

The U S Eighth army's 158th combat team moved today into Utsunomiya, 50 miles north of Tokyo, the first occupation troops to enter that area.

SENATE GROUP EYES TAX CUT

Committee Opens Hearings on New Bill; Pearl Harbor in Limelight Again.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15—The $5,350,000,000 tax cutting bill began the second stage of its journey through congress today.

The senate finance committee opened hearings on the measures which the house already has passed.

Lawmakers were busy on such subjects as the Pearl Harbor investigation, minimum wages and demobilization.

There was talk about strikes and merging the Army and Navy.

The finance committee must pass judgment on the house bill, then report its findings to the full senate for debate and a vote.

The senate committee planned open hearings to hear Secretary of the Treasury Fred M. Vinson and other witnesses.

There were indications Vinson would be asked not only about reducing taxes but federal spending as well.

Byrd Is Arrested

Senator Byrd (D-Va) told a reporter he wants to know what is being done along the lines of paring the budget and whittling down the national debt.

Here's the pitch on the rest of the congressional news today:

Lt. Stanley Neal Officially Listed as Killed in Action

A letter received Saturday by Mr. and Mrs Robert M Neal of 753 Silver street, confirmed notification in a telegram received earlier in the week from the war department that their son, 1st Lt Stanley Neal, 25, was killed in action on Feb 20, 1944, on a mission over Germany. He was officially reported missing in action on that date in March last year.

The letter stated he was killed in action over Edmissen, near Einbeck, Germany. A letter written by one of Lt Neal's friends shortly after he was reported missing, in keeping with an agreement made by the two to notify their parents if either got into difficulty on a mission, stated that from all appearances Lt. Neal's plane went down under control and expressed the hope that the crew made a safe landing.

The planes were carrying bombs to their base in England after completing their mission when an enemy fighter plane got into the formation and shot Lt Neal's plane, which was flying directly

DIES TRAITOR'S DEATH BEFORE FIRING SQUAD

Former French Premier Saved After Taking Poison, Only To Face Soldiers' Bullets.

By The Associated Press

PARIS, Oct. 15—Pierre Laval was executed as a traitor to France today after failing to cheat the firing squad by swallowing poison.

The man who collaborated with the Germans as chief of government in old Marshal Petain's Vichy regime died from a coup de grace, fired through his ear, when a volley from the firing squad did not kill him.

Doctors restored the swarthy traitor from effects of poison taken four hours earlier. He was led to the courtyard of the bleak old Fresnes prison and died with a cry of "Vive La France" on his lips.

Laval refused a proferred blindfold and faced his executioners.

These were his last words:

"It is not the soldiers' fault. They know not what they do. Vive La France!"

The twelve riflemen fired.

Laval fell only to his knees.

An officer rushed up, aimed his revolver into Laval's ear and fired. The coup de grace dispatched Laval at 12 32 p m and he fell dead into the dirt.

Condemned Week 'Ago

The man who before the war had thrice been premier of France and a dozen times a member of her cabinets was condemned by the high court of justice last week—the same court which condemned former Marshal Petain and Joseph Darnand, the head of the Vichy militia.

A coffin lay near the spot where Laval had pitched forward in death. The body was placed in it swiftly and loaded into a hearse.

Three official cars bearing the prefect of police, the attorney general and local police commissioner accompanied the hearse.

The little procession went to nearby Thiais cemetery and there Laval's coffin was lowered into the ground.

The execution of the former Vichy chief of government, whose death was as sensational as his turbulent political career, was formally announced by the ministry of justice.

Laval refused to accept a blindfold and met his end facing the 12-man firing squad, the announcement said. He made no final statement.

Quick action by prison physicians apparently was responsible for the failure of Laval's attempt to cheat the firing squad. The execution originally had been scheduled for 9 a. m. (2 a. m. EST) at Fort Chatillin, but officials decided against moving Laval to the fort after his suicide attempt.

Laval made his desperate bid to thwart the fate decreed for him when officials entered his cell at 8 a. m. (1 a. m. EST) to remove him to Fort Chatillon. Robert Amor, director of French prisons, said Laval was lying on his cot when Prosecutor Andre Mornet and other officials entered.

Guessing their purpose—condemned prisoners in France are not told of the hour set for their execution until the last moment—Laval huddled down in the bed clothes and while under cover slipped a poison capsule into his mouth.

A moment later he tumbled to the floor writhing in agony and prison physicians quickly went into action.

The 63-year-old Laval was convicted by a high French tribunal last Tuesday for intelligence with the enemy and plotting against the security of France.

Last minute attempt by defense attorneys to win a new trial failed yesterday when Gen. Charles DeGaulle declined to intervene.

After taking the capsule Laval fell to the floor. Physicians washed his throat out immediately.

All arrangements for the execution had been made last night at Fort Chatillon, where a 12-man firing squad was being held in readiness.

The swarthy Auvergnate had fought a losing battle to keep out of Allied hands after the German collapse. He unsuccessfully sought sanctuary in Switzerland and Liechtenstein. On May 2, 1945, a radio-equipped Luftwaffe plane flew him to Spain.

After repeated requests by the major Allied powers, including the United States, the Spanish government turned Laval [illegible]

Colonel and The Corporal Fight Together, Then Join in Death

By HAL BOYLE

WITH AMERICAN MARINES IN JAPAN—(Delayed)—At night when sleep comes slowly I often think of the colonel and the corporal.

I never met them and I have forgotten their names. But I would like to pass on to you their story as it was told to me months ago in Germany.

They were an inseparable team—"the colonel and the corporal." That's the way everyone who knew about them spoke of them—"the colonel and the corporal." Few people who asked about the colonel ever failed to add "and how's that corporal of his, too?"

Hal Boyle

Close friendships between officers and men are unusual in Army life but not exactly rare. Differences in rank ordinarily make too high a hurdle for such friendships because of the grinding social distinctions drawn in military circles by an inflexible caste system which is as old as war.

But the friendship of "the colonel and the corporal" was a battlefield friendship not a parlor friendship, and it was built on a mutual trust and loyalty in time of danger that had been tested and found steel-true in more than one combat.

They belonged to an outfit of picked men who were assigned the most perilous of missions, tasks which required brains, a sense of battle time, and stoutness of heart as well as muscle.

West With Outfit

The colonel was an organizer of high ability, a sensitive skilled planner. He set up the initial operation for his outfit in Normandy but when the time came to go into action he insisted on going in with them too, although that hadn't been in the plan. His superiors hadn't wanted to risk him.

"I want to go along with you, sir," said the corporal. And that's how the friendship began. The colonel and the corporal went in together. At the very start they found themselves in desperate straits, and before they broke through encircling Germans with their men the corporal's carbine had saved the colonel's life, and the colonel's .45 automatic had preserved the corporal.

There were tight spots and close calls after that as battle followed battle. The colonel came through them all with the corporal a loyal shadow at his side. At night the corporal stayed up to help the colonel work out details of the next day's troop movements. It was a friendship never put into words. Each understood the other.

Other soldiers often kidded the corporal for his almost doglike devotion to his officer. He never resented it.

"I would go with him anywhere," he always answered. "Anywhere he wanted."

Nobody guessed as the war wore on to its close that the colonel was cracking. The days of strain in the field and the midnight hours of planning had worn him down. Yet he seemed as light and easy as ever. He never gave the usual signs—temper outbursts, nervous irritability over small matters.

Colonel Ends It

So it came as a shock to everyone—particularly the corporal—when the colonel put a gun to his temple one night and pulled the trigger. He had been organizing a major battle action, and in the middle of it he knew he hadn't the strength to go on. And rather than try to bluff and risk his men's lives when he no longer had confidence in his own power to win through he chose this way out. It wasn't cowardice in any sense. No one felt it was anyway.

The corporal was stunned. A few days later he got another blow. A letter came from his girl back home telling him as gently as she could she had fallen in love with someone else during his absence. The letter was to tell him she was getting married. She hoped he wouldn't blame her too much.

He caught himself going blindly with the letter to the colonel's tent to ask his advice. But the colonel was dead, buried. And it wasn't the same with the new colonel.

For a long time the corporal thought it over all alone, keeping it all to himself. Then he acted. He took the carbine that had saved his colonel. He cleaned and polished it and put on a clean uniform. He put the barrel of the carbine to his head and reached his hand down for the trigger like a lover, and so he joined his old colonel.

Radio Manufacturers Allowed Price Increase

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 15—Fixing of radio set prices by OPA giving increases to manufacturers ranging from 10½ to 15 per cent over 1941 figures out with wholesalers and retailers to absorb the advance has cleared the way for active civilian production. The effect, however, is to make the consumer market figures about what they were before the war.

Hesitancy had been shown by the industry since V-J day in getting back to a full civilian capacity pending clarification of the price issue. Differences had developed over what the amount should be. Maufacturers still contend in a number of instances that the advances granted had not met the situation.

Douglas was a little expansive on some occasions, d I don't mean that unkindly. I just wondered if I served such praise.

'And for that," he continued. "I'm going to see that ou are made a permanent major general of the Regular rmy." That was nice, for I was only a temporary e at the time.

He spoke to the other generals for a few minutes, ien came back to me.

"Where are your 155 mm. guns?" he asked.

I told him where the six of them were, and since o of them were fairly close I suggested that he walk er with me and taks a look at them.

"Jonathan," he said, "I don't want to SEE them I ant to HEAR them."

INSTALLMENT NO. 9

In this chapter Gen. Wainwright gives the details of four dramatic attempts by the Japs to break into his escape route to Corregidor.

THE JAPS struck us on Bataan shortly after General MacArthur returned to Corregidor after his January 9 inspection tour They came as silently as snakes, hugging the opposite sides of Mount Silanganan and infiltrating between my right flank and the mountain, and Major General Parker's left flank and the mountain.

By January 15 Parker's left flank was in bad shape. had to send my Forty-Fifth Infantry around the mountain to help him. But the Japs had got so many men through the narrow slot on Parker's left flank that they were attacking him sharply from the west and threatening to separate the I and II Corps even more than the mountain did. My Thirty-First Division was therefore taken from my command and assigned to Parker's II Corps

On January 16 my I Corps was hit. Fresh Jap troops had landed at Port Binanga on the northwestern coast of Bataan, and now, after a march southward through the jungle, they hit my First Philippine Division I went up to Mauban Ridge that morning, called in one troop of the Twenty-Sixth cavalry to help a battalion of the First Philippine Division, and we managed to drive the Japs back across the Moron River.

But the main infantry battalion's commander suffered a severe head wound during the fighting. The next senior officer, Capt John Wheeler, took command and though he had been painfully wounded in the leg he stuck with his men until they had scored this delaying victory.

The situation over on Parker's left flank was deteriorating so badly, however, that my own right flank was becoming imperiled. This put me in the position of having to meet possible attacks, not only from the north and from the China sea to my left, but also from the right, or east. I now had a three-sided front, and not enough men to fight even a one-sided front.

It meant spreading thinly, and as a result the Japs on January 21 infiltrated around the right of my First Philippine Division and won possession of the Moron-Bagac road, the only road running down that northwestern sector of Bataan.

Jap Lines Held

I went north and directed the counterattack on the Jap forces holding the road, throwing all available reserves against them But they held doggedly. So the First Philippine division had to get back to the south, and to at least temporary safety, but coming down the narrow, sandy, rocky beaches which lay between the China sea and the Jap-held highway

This meant that the trapped force had to destroy all its heavier guns and all its transportation equipment, for there was no way to get this materiel down the beaches The men trudged back afoot, carrying their wounded on quickly-made litters or on the backs of the strong. It was a fearful trek

In the midst of the fight for the Moron-Bagac road I was ordered by MacArthur to withdraw all forces to the "reserve battle position"—a line running close to and approximately parallel with the Pilar-Bagac road, which crosses Bataan like a waist-belt.

To More Level Ground

That withdrawal, which had to be effected by the morning of January 26, had an obvious purpose It moved the I and II Corps back to less mountainous ground, relieved the pressure on Parker and got us away from that infernal mountain which separated our Corps in the first position on Bataan.

My I Corps' new area now reached down Bataan all the way to the southern tip, including the town and Bay of Mariveles, near which latter point our engineers were building a base for the bombers which never came to our aid

By now I had one of the most amazingly varied fighting corps in the history of U. S. arms. My new lineup of units included Brig. Gen William E. Brougher's Eleventh division, Brig. Gen Fidel V Segundo's dead - tired First division, Brig. Gen. Clinton Pierce's Seventy - First division, Brig Gen Luther R Stevens' Ninety-First division, the Forty-Fifth Infantry Regiment of Philippine Scouts, the tattered remnants of the Twenty - Sixth Cavalry, now commanded by Col. Lee Vance; a small group of planeless fliers and ground crewmen, some Air Corps Engineers, a detachment of about 450 sailors, and the Second Philippine Constabulary.

Many Poorly Trained

The grounded airmen were almost totally unfamiliar with firearms and along with the sailors, had no infantry training.

We spit on our hands and waited for the enemy to come again.

If we had had something in our bellies, some hope that we could expect help from the Umted States, things might have been a little more endurable. But our perpetual hunger, the steaming heat by day and night, the terrible malaria for which we did not have enough quinine, and the moans of the wounded, were terribly hard on the men, especially when all this was piled on top the knowledge that the Japs were coming at us again and there was little room left for retreating

The horses of the Twenty-Sixth Cavalry had to be shot by the men they had served so gallantly, and eaten by all of us The horses had eaten all the rice straw stacks remaining in that tip of Bataan since the last harvest. There was no forage for them.. and their tough meat became eagerly sought slivers in our rice.

False Hopes Aroused

Over on Corregidor the radio station which MacArthur had renamed "The Voice of Freedom" played us some swing tunes and told us on Bataan that help was on the way When we first heard that, some of the men wept with joy But that joy did not last long For, you see, the announcer said such things only to try to throw a little fear of God into the approaching Japs.

It was about that time—when we fell back to what must be our last position on Bataan—that my friend Frank Hewlett, the war correspondent, wrote the little tune which went

We're the battling bastards of Bataan
No momma, no poppa, no Uncle Sam
No aunts, no uncles, no nephews, no nieces.
No rifles, no guns or artillery pieces
And nobody gives a damn.

The first blows the Jap threw at us in our new positions down toward the tip of Bataan did not come from the north, as was expected. In the midst of our move to our last ditch, the enemy landed at four points along the southwestern and southern extremity of the peninsula, sternly threatening my I Corps' left rear flank and imperiling the only road that led from my front line to the southern tip of Bataan.

Jap Landings Contested

The Jap landing at Longoskawayan Point, not far from Mariveles and the mostly southernly of the rear attacks, was well contested by a battalion of the Forty-Fifth Infantry (Scouts) and by 450 sailors under the command of Commander Bridgett, U S N

The force that came ashore at Quinauan Point, at the other end of the four-pronged landing, ran into a small, tough group of Air Corps Engineers and Maj Dudley G. Strickler's fine Third Battalion of the Forty-Fifth Infantry.

At Agloloma Point the Japs hardly touched the beach. Troops along the beach defenses shelled and machine-gunned them as they neared the shore, and our P-40's, happy to be rid of reconnaissance duty, strafed the landing boats, sinking and scattering them.

The fourth landing, on the tiny peninsula between the Anyasan and Salaiim Rivers, was the most serious threat, most likely to cut the road that led south to Mariveles—take-off point for Corregidor, which stood like a bulwark to our rear.

Defenders Driven Back

Miscellaneous units defending the peninsula between the Anyasan and the Salaiim were thrown back by the force of the landings I ordered a regiment of infantry—the Fifty-Seventh (Scouts)—to rush to the support of the motley defenders.

The battle of Quinauan Point lasted 12 bloody days and nights, during which time Major Strickler's Third Battalion performed heroically. This great battalion had to fight virtually alone I could not send anything else down there without weakening my main front to the north—a front which already was taking heavy blows from the main Jap forces

The Third Battalion went into action with a major, four captains, a full complement of lieutenants and 600 men. When it was withdrawn 12 days later, after driving the Japs into the China Sea, it was commanded by a second lieutenant and its force had been hacked down to 212 men. Every other officer and man was accounted for as having been buried or evacuated wounded. There were no stragglers

Gallant Leader Killed

Its gallant Major Strickland, a heroic leader in the close-quarter fighting, was found on the front line of the battalion, dead, a bullet through his helmet

The men had fought under terrible handicaps in jungle and bamboo wilderness so dense that only high-angle fire weapons were effective To win that battle we had to exhaust some of the last infantry mortar ammunition of my I Corps The bamboo actually deflected our 30 caliber fire.

At the climax of the battle of Quinauan Point, when the enemy was driven back to the sea, many Jap troops took cover in a cave along the water line The cave had been eaten out of the cliff by the wash of waves Now you must remember that these were the early days of our war with Japan, and the men in that cave were some of the first—if not the first—thus pocketed

Japs Refuse To Surrender

They refused to surrender When this was reported to me it was hard to believe. I ordered another proffer of honorable surrender, but the trapped Japs fired on troops who brought the offer

The old rules of war began to undergo a swift change in me What had at first seemed a barbarous thought in the back of my mind now became less unsavory I thought of Gen U S Grant's land mine at Petersburg, and made up my mind.

I arranged for a small gunboat which had remained in our waters to move in from the sea and shell the cave Engineers erected toward it from the landward side, lowered electrically fused mines, and blew the place to pieces There were no survivors It had at last dawned on me, as it was to dawn on so many commanders who followed me in the Pacific War, that the Jap usually prefers death to surrender.

Fight to the Death

Our men, in that critical battle which saw our whole position on Bataan in jeopardy preferred death to defeat. In this fight my aide, Johnny Pugh, found a dead Philippine Scout sergeant with his right hand cut off at the wrist His pistol lay close to the left hand In front of the sergeant was a dead Jap lieutenant. Beside him was his bloody sword The Scout with the severed right hand had killed the Jap with his left

The backbone of the fighting on the point between the Anyasan and Salaiim rivers—another 13-day battle—was Col E J Lilly's Fifty-Seventh regiments of Scouts, freshly arrived from Parker's II Corps

When at last Lilly's men drove the Japs back to the shoreline they were stunned to find the first Jap suicidists . . . hard to believe in those days when most of us presumed that the Jap fighter was a human being much like the rest of us

BADGERS TOUGH BUT STATE WINS 12 TO 0, FACES PURDUE NEXT

Bucks Head Into Rugged Opposition on Road to Another Perfect Season.

By HAROLD HARRISON
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 15—Ohio State university's improving football machine today as a third of the way along the route to another undefeated and untied season but week by week the road is getting tougher.

Wisconsin's hard fighting Badgers, helped along at crucial moments by penalties, continued to give the Bucks a rugged afternoon Saturday and from all indications Ohio's team can look for even more trouble next Saturday when Purdue's undefeated Boilermakers move into the big stadium to settle the Western Conference leadership.

Throttled for more than 15 minutes, the Bucks finally drove home for touchdowns in both the second and third periods Saturday to take a 12 to 0 decision from Wisconsin as 69,235 persons sat in on the festivities.

Speed Helps Out

And once again it was speed and then more speed, largely by Paul Sarringhaus and Dick Fisher, that wrote Ohio's 12th straight grid victroy into the books.

The Badgers just couldn't catch up with those two fast flying veterans and it was quite a sight, particularly on the drive to the second touchdown, to which the pair run the Badgers dizzy on sweeps around end. Sarringhaus would race to the right and Fisher would come right back to the left in a march that carried 78 yards in nine plays.

When the tilt was over Coach Carroll Widdoes asserted the team looked considerably better than in the triumph over Iowa but he warned there would have to be even more improvement to cope with such future foes as Purdue, Minnesota, Illinois and Michigan.

Wisconsin Coach Harry Stuhldreher called the Bucks a "great team, however, and he was practically drooling over the performances of Sarringhaus, Fisher and Warren Amling.

Although only two touchdowns were recorded, the Bucks drove to within five yards of the goal line on three other occasions only to have the plays called back because of penalties.

Oakland and Main Sparkle in Grade School Loop Tilts

The second round of the grade school football league began to show the teams with offensive power Oakland and North Main in the first league tilts up big scores in their respective games while the other four games were battles

Oakland 46, Oak 0

It took exactly one play and that was the first kickoff to decide this game. Oak kicked off to Oakland's Erwin who lateraled back to Edgington. Edgington, second good kicking, ran 60 yards for a touchdown. Edgington scored 5 touchdowns and 2 points on conversions. Freece and Price also scored touchdowns for the winners. Coach Dick Smith commented that the Oakland team does an excellent job of blocking for his speedy backfield men.

Oakland	21	0	19	6—46

Official—Hoffman.

North Main 39, Glenwood 0

In the game that was supposed to be a high scoring battle, North Main provided all the punch. Coaches Andrews and Cuco of North Main deserve high praise for putting a well roached team with all the boys knowing their plays. The North Main line blocked in such fine style enabling Russel and Delong, their passers, to have plenty of time to pick out their receivers. The combination of Russel and Delong on long passes scores 3 touchdowns. Delong to Smith accounted for the fourth, and the speedy Russel scored twice on wide end runs.

North Main	9	12	12	6—39

Silver 6, St. Mary 2

Both schools were battling for their first win, and Silver, taking advantage of a break, made the most of their advantage. Waits, Silver Street tackle, intercepted a short bullet pass thrown by St. Mary's Finnegan and raced 30 yards for a touchdown. In the last quarter St. Mary broke through to down a Silver Street back behind his goal line for a safety. Finnegan of the losers was outstanding showing possibilities as a great passer. Coach Holliday of Silver was pleased with his team's showing as they had but 9 men.

Silver	0	6	0	0—6
St. Mary's	0	0	0	2—2

Officials: Anderson and Maloney.

Forest Lawn 8, Greenwood 0

Forest Lawn stayed in the undefeated group by taking advantage of two breaks in the first quarter, and they played good defensive ball the rest of the game. Forest Lawn's May tagged a Greenwood man behind his goal line when a bad pass from center went over his head. Ainey in the first quarter intercepted a pass and ran 20 yards for a touchdown. Ainey of Forest Lawn connected for 7 passes. For the losers Alexander made one run that set up a possible score but his team did not take advantage of it.

Forest Lawn	8	0	0	0—8

Official: Wright.

Pearl 14, Mark 0

Pearl Street showed surprising power in upsetting Mark. Roebuck scored in the second quarter on an end run, and the last touchdown was scored on a McDaniel to Roebuck pass that was incomplete but was allowed due to interference with the receiver. Coach Lacey of Pearl has an improving team that is planning on giving Forest Lawn a real battle next week.

Pearl	0	7	0	7—14

Officials: Leffler and Bender.

George Washington 6, Olney 0

A long run by a Washington back was called back due to an offside penalty, and that was the only scoring threat. Neither team could find the play that would score. Olney threatened several times but intercepted passes ended their drives down the field.

By The Associated Press

SEATTLE, Oct. 15 — Toledo's king of the links, Byron Nelson, swapped his golfing irons today for a shooting iron and slipped away to Idaho's mountains after knocking over a world's record yesterday in winning the $10,250 Seattle Open Golf tournament with a score of 193-66—259. It was worth $2,000 in war bonds to Mr. Nelson.

Oberlin Claims Ohio Pennant

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., 15—Oberlin college has staked out its claim to the mythical Ohio college football championship (Ohio State excepted) but it will be several weeks before the Yeomen known how many other claimants there will be.

Oberlin finished up the Ohio part of its schedule Saturday with a 25 to 7 victory over Baldwin-Wallace — the seventh straight triumph for the Yeomen—and they'll complete their schedule next Saturday against Depauw.

The victory also gave Oberlin a record of three won and none lost within the Ohio Conference.

Off their records thus far, the teams which might give Oberlin some argument as to the statewide title are Miami and Capital. Miami has won four in a row, the latest being a 21 to 13 triumph over Western Michigan Saturday. The 13 points scored by Western Michigan were the first to be recorded against the Redskins this year.

Capital won its second straight —a 38 to 0 decision over Kenyon —and the Lutherans haven't yielded a point in their first two starts.

Bowling Green finished its season with a record of four victories and three defeats by beating Case, 26 to 7.

Ohio university contributed the biggest upset of the day by nosing out Cincinnati, 20 to 19. The Bobcats spotted Cincinnati 13 first period points and then came from behind to win. Gene Ruszkowski, whose missed kick cost Ohio U. a tie with Western Michigan a week ago, got the extra point after the final touchdown to give his team the triumph. It was Ohio's first victory in three starts and the second setback in four games for Cincinnati.

Depauw, Oberlin's next foe, made it an even split in two games against Ohio teams by walloping Ohio Wesleyan, 27 to 0. Last week the Hoosiers were beaten by Cincinnati.

Three schools which haven't had football teams since 1942 returned to gridiron competition. Two of them were Ohio Northern and Bluffton and their tilt resulted in a 21 to 0 decision for Ohio Northern. Heidelberg returned to the football wars with a 7 to 7 tie with Otterbein.

Denison and Muskingum were victors in two other Ohio Conference games, Denison squeezed past Wooster, 13 to 6, and Muskingum took a free-scoring affair from Wittenberg, 39 to 13.

Louisville Defeats Newark 5-3 To Cop Little Series Flag

By The Associated Press

LOUISVILLE, Oct. 15—Tied up 3-3 going into the last half of the eighth inning, the Louisville Colonels shoved across two runs to defeat the Newark Bears 5-3 and win the 1945 Little World Series championship here yesterday.

Rex Cecil, Colonel hurler who went the route, kept the 10 Newark hits well scattered while striking out eight. Newark, in losing the sixth series game and the 1945 championship, used Harry Garbett, Jack Farmer and Frank Mokosky.

The Little World Series opened last week in Newark where in the remainder of the series, the Bears won two straight before the American Association club came up with their fourth victory.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15—Lou Little, Columbia's canny coach, was holding forth on how the offense has taken over football this season—and Lou's Lions didn't do so badly in that respect Saturday. . . "That's the way it should be," Little maintained, "The era of solid defense and two and three yard gains is a thing of the past. The fans want offensive football and I think we ought to encourage the offense in every way possible. Of course, it's harder to break in a player who hasn't had much practice," Little admitted. "The assignments are too important. The day is gone when a tackle did nothing but charge and batter his brains out on defense."... One of the listeners interrupted: "It doesn't take brains to play tackle, does it, Lou?"... "No," stated Lou grimly. "If he had any brains he wouldn't be playing tackle."... In case you don't know, Little was about as good a tackle as Penn ever had just before and after World War One.

List of Unbeaten Teams Due To Drop with Week's Battles

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 15. — The dwindling list of unbeaten major football teams will get another pruning next Saturday when such undefeated powers as Ohio State and Purdue and Alabama and Tennessee clash in conference competition.

Only 21 of the gridiron great native unmarred records today after last weekend saw Cornell, Tulane, Southern California, Texas A. & M., Florida and Washington State go down to defeat for the first time.

The List Shrinks

Princeton defeated Cornell, 14-6; Rice beat Tulane 13-7; San Diego Naval, which was beaten several weeks ago by U. C. L. A., walloped Southern California 33-6; Louisana State conquered Texas A & M. 21-12; Vanderbilt blanked Florida 7-0 and Washington subdued Washington State 6-0. Penn State also suffered its first —but the Nittany Lions weren't going to do anything but hold Navy's score down. The Middies, minus the services of the injured Clyde Scott and Bob Jenkins, looked far from impressive in their 28-0 conquest.

Army, Notre Dame, Ohio State, Minnesota, Alabama, Indiana and Texas — among the top ranking teams — continued their all-conquering ways.

Army Has Hard Battle

The cadets were given a rousing tussle by Michigan's Wolverines with Doc Blanchard and Glenn Davis proving the difference in the 28-7 count. The Westerners probably will get more [illegible] warmup Saturday from unbeaten Mervile Pt. Base [illegible] Raiders.

PRO FOOTBALL RACE BLASTED BY UPSETS

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 15—Pre-season predictions all the way across the National Football league's territory have been blasted to a shambles.

Only two teams remained on the undefeated list. The champion Green Bay Packers, the favored Philadelphia Eagles, and the New York Giants all had title hopes riddled in a series of upsets probably unparalleled in National Football league history.

Cleveland's Rams knocked Green Bay out of the unbeaten class, and held their own record clear, by slamming across three last-quarter touchdowns for a 27-14 victory. Boston's Yanks still are unbeaten, but they settled for a 13-13 tie with New York yesterday to dampen the Giants' title hopes.

The Philadelphia Eagles went down before the Detroit Lions, 28 to 24. Chicago's Bears were humbled, 16-7, by their cross-town rivals, the Chicago Cardinals—first victory for the latter in their last 30 games. Washington beat Pittsburgh, 14-0.

HEAVY CORN SALES NOT EXPECTED YET

Special to The Star

CHICAGO, Oct. 13 — Heavier marketings of corn are not expected in the near future despite the fact that farmers no longer have any doubts about their new crop, Chicago board of trade crop experts said today.

Trade authorities believe farmers will sell their new corn before taking their better quality old crop out of the cribs. Cash handlers have reported bookings of new crop corn for shipment later, but old corn continues extremely scarce.

Although the government this week estimated stocks of corn on farms at 307,000,000 bushels, 100,-000,000 bushels higher than a year ago, industries using the grain have been operating almost on a day to day basis and distillers' stocks of bourbon are about exhausted.

Several reasons are advanced by trade authorities for farmers' reluctance to sell their corn belief that income taxes might be smaller next year, possibility ceiling prices may be higher, particularly if the proposed bill to increase parity prices is enacted; and the fact that less labor costs would be involved by selling the new corn than by transferring the old corn out of storage and the new crop in.

Frost has caused some damage to the new crop. This was reflected by the department of agriculture's estimate that about 87 per cent of the production this year would be harvested for grain, compared with 90 per cent last year. Corn damaged by frost will be soft and will be diverted to silage or forage.

The high wheat prices, government buying for export, and high mill consumption are attracting considerable wheat from the farms. Although no figures have been issued on the amount of wheat placed under loan this year, traders believe the total is extremely small. There is little incentive to place wheat under loan when the market price is 10 to 12 cents a bushel above the loan figure.

NEEDED

The Fairfield Engineering Co.

To Wives and Parents of Engineers Due To Return Home from the Services

The home town has first claim on these men and we wish them their richly-deserved success. But to those engineers who for any reason will seek employment elsewhere, we make a special appeal. The Austin Company needs young ambitious engineers in all its offices from Coast to Coast—men who are interested in the long-term opportunities offered by a strong, nation-wide organization.

Openings exist in Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago, the East Coast, Gulf Coast and West Coast. These positions are in long-stablished engineering departments on the design and preparation of working drawings for the construction of industrial plants and their facilities. Men are needed with full or partial education or experience in mechanical, electrical, structural and architectural design.

Wives and Parents: Do not write us but please send this to your service man. Ask him to write immediately to Mr. W. G. Paton, Vice-President. The letter should give education and experience, preferred location and approximate month of release.

LOVE'S FAIR HORIZON

By ADELE GARRISON

DICKY'S reply was prompt, and his face held no trace of the mirth which had just been his. Indeed, there was no laughter left in any of us. My father's manner insured that with its hint of some emergency confronting him, an emergency which he had not yet revealed, but which was connected, we knew, with the transference of Georges from the hotel to the hideaway.

"I am sure Jack and I can manage," Dicky said. "Aren't you, Fellah?"

Disguise Not Hurt

"Of course," Jack rejoined. "You see, sir"—he turned deferentially to my father—"that bluff I put up about the Dicky bird skinning me, was just a line to get a laugh, I'm sorry to say. But the goatee and mustache aren't hurt—"

"And Madge always has a first aid make-up kit in her luggage," my husband said. So we won't have to call on Mary."

My father's frown was portentous now.

"That's the one thing which must not be done," he said. "Call on anybody else in the city for aid except Mary—or Noel. Neither of them must come to this apartment or know of Georges' departure until after he is safe in the hideaway."

I saw Jack's eyebrows elevate themselves ever so slightly, caught his quick glance at his wife, and knew that his keen mentality was figuring out the reason for the hurried banishment of the fugitive king of Trees.

A Poker Face

But Katharine was preserving a "poker face," as Dicky and I were, and there was no confirming of Jack's conjecture.

"I'm sure we won't have to call on anybody," Dicky assured the Chief.

Good'" my father said explosively. Now, we haven't a minute to lose. Gus is waiting with the armored car at a designated rendezvous to come here and pick Jack and me up. It really doesn't matter whether or not the disguise fools Gus or Joe, but it might be better if it did."

"It will," Dicky said confidently, "that is, if Georges is willing, for the trip down, to change his outer clothing for the suit Jack is wearing. You could have the suits sent back up and down by messenger. Luckily the two are about the same size, although Jack is distinctly thinner."

Foreign-Looking Cape

"Georges will do anything he is told to do," my father said grimly. "And, luckily, Jack, part of your disguise was that foreign-looking military cape. That will hide any straining of the seams on Georges."

Jack opened his mouth, then closed it again as suddenly, and my father suddenly laughed aloud, a sound which almost made us start in surprise.

"If he should burst any seams, Jack," he said, "I will see that they are fully repaired before we return the suit. But I am sure nothing will happen. And I shall send all your personal belongings up here, transferring your records and other paraphernalia to my own safe."

He paused and looked at Jack quizzically, but there was admiration also in his eyes.

"That is, except what you are carrying around in your head," he said. "Don't worry, Katharine. I'm not going to detach him from that."

We all laughed, a bit dutifully, I am afraid, but with comprehension that the was trying to ease the tension which he, himself, had created.

"I will telephone Gus now," my father went on, "and I wish you, Jack, would go with Richard into the bedroom, and get into a bathrobe and slippers of Richard's so that your clothing will be all ready for Georges to don. Also, please get everything in readiness for putting that disguise on him."

The men departed on the word, and my father turned to me.

"Margaret," he said, "I must give you the hardest task of all. Georges does not yet know that he must go immediately to the hideaway. I wish you to go up to the Philip Veritzen apartment now, and give him that news.

YOUR HEALTH

By HERMAN BUNDESEN, M. D.

Growth of the Bone

There is a condition known as cervical rib which produces a variety of disturbances affecting the neck and arms. In this condition, there is an overgrowth of bone like an extra rib at the upper part of the spine. Just why this disorder occurs is not known. The symptoms produced by the condition are due to pressure on the nerves and blood vessels.

The type of symptoms that develop depends upon whether the pressure is high or low in the neck, and whether the blood vessels or the nerves are under pressure. Pain occurs in practically all instances. The pain is dull and aching in nature.

The next most common complaint is numbness in the arm and shoulder. The pain may pass into the back or into the front of the chest or upward toward the ear but, in most instances, it is located in the arm and forearm. Most of the persons with this condition walk with their shoulders raised while they are careful not to move the arm away from the body or turn the head suddenly.

The strength of the pulse beat in the affected arm may be less than that on the other side. Of course, an X-ray plate showing the pressure of the cervical rib is important in the diagnosis.

The treatment consists of a period of bed rest, with the patient sleeping on his back with the head bent slightly forward and the shoulders held forward by pillows. The patients, when moving about, are taught to walk properly. Exercises may be given to develop the muscles.

In some cases, the condition may be relieved by operation. Various types of operation are performed to relieve the condition. In some instances, the scalenus anticus muscle is cut. In other cases, the rib is removed and sometimes both procedures are employed.

Persons who suffer from pain in the neck and arm, numbness and similar symptoms should have X-rays made of the upper part of the spine in order to determine if the symptoms are due to cervical rib. Once a diagnosis is made, proper treatment may be carried out.

NEW HUDSONS FOR 1946 ANNOUNCED

Two Style Lines, Two Size Motors Planned.

Two distinctly different style lines of 1946 Hudson cars—the Super series and the Commodore, both in six and eight-cylinder engines—will be available in the postwar models now in production, G. H. Pratt, general sales manager for Hudson Motors at Detroit, announced yesterday.

Designers have achieved a massive front appearance and lines that give the car a longer sweep from the head-on angle. Bumpers are wide and heavy with tubular guards. Upholstery fabrics are combined with leather for the interior and airfoam cushions are again available.

The major mechanical features in the engine have been retained, the drive-master which eliminates the clutch and gear lever operation in forward driving, and patented hydraulic brakes which provide an emergency mechanical braking system operating automatically from the same foot pedal. Improvements include easier steering new strength in the frame, wheels with a wider tire grip and shock absorbers.

Preserve Moral Issues, Urges K. of C. Columbus Day Speaker

Danger That Confusion May Undo the Accomplishments of Allied Victory Is Cited by Rev. Benedict Rubeck.

By EDNA S. DUTTON

Only by straight thinking, conformity with Christian morality and application of the same moral test that we used in the early days of Hitler's conquests, can we hope to fashion the peace we all ardently hope will be worthy of the suffering and travail it has cost, Rev Benedict Rubeck, O. M C., told an audience of more than 100 men yesterday morning, in Moira hall. The occasion was the annual Columbus Day breakfast held by Marion Council No 671, Knights of Columbus Rev. Rubeck, a son of the parish, now a member of the faculty of Our Lady of Carey seminary at Carey, was guest speaker for the breakfast and also the celebrant for the 7 30 o'clock mass in St Mary Catholic church at which more than 125 council members and men of the parish received Holy Communion in a body The mass was offered in thanksgiving for peace and the safe return of men in the armed forces, and a later mass was in remembrance of men who made the supreme sacrifice, a spiritual bouquet from the council.

Confusion of Issues

Rev. Rubeck's subject was "The Forgotten Moral Issue" Citing as a brilliantly illustrated truth that to be confused is to be weak and to be weak is to be lost, he pointed out that not a small share of Hitler's first success was due to his uncanny ability to confuse issues in his opponents' minds, and added that "behind that confusion so deliberately planned was a keen, cunning purpose that almost succeeded"

Expressing the opinion that it is not surprising that many are confused after reading the reports of diplomats in trying to negotiate peace, the confusion, he said, is superficial. "It derives chiefly from diplomacy, which is subtle and devious, and from economics which is intricate and inexact, neither of which is an intergal part of the world which God created" Describing the ordeal we have just endured as being in part a clash of opposing political and economic philosophies, "it was more,' he continued, 'it was a gigantic struggle for the supremacy of two opposed ways of life," and a challenge to all men who love liberty and hate oppression.

The Basic Questions

"Now, as in the early days of the war, when evidence appears to be confusing it is the part of wisdom to make simple decisions that conform to the integrity of our characters, and the basic questions to be asked are not political or economic, but moral ones," he said.

Japan's war for conquest in the East and Germany's enslavement of smaller nations were wrong, not because they violated international law but because they struck at the sacred spirit of man who is a creature endowed by his Creator with certain inalienable rights, Rev. Rubeck declared, and added

If it was wrong for Hitler to mercilessly extinguish the rights of Poles, Belgians, Frenchmen and other conquered nations, what shall we say of those people whose identical rights are so wantonly violated today? What of the Poles, the Esthonians, Latvians, Finns, Hungarians, and others? They are small nations but in the aggregate they amount to many millions of men, women and children who are members of the human race, endowed with the same rights as Dutchmen, Danes, or the inhabitants of the islands of the South Pacific."

Sacred Memories

In closing he said, "Now is the time to remember the moral issues for which so many fought and died This sacred memory will dispel for the moral man, the man who is imbued with the Christian sentiment, much of the fog of confusion that fills the world today. It will give him a clear, unerring vision of what must be done to ensure a lasting peace It will melt away prejudice that so often distorts our views Rightly we were told by our leaders that we could not escape responsibility by averting our eyes from the ashes of innocent people's homes, by stopping our ears to the anguished cries of oppressed fellow human beings in a world grown very small Can we, today, dare we, forget those moral issues upon which hangs the peace of the world?"

Joseph Dunn, grand knight of Marion Council, K of C, presided for the program and the invocation was spoken by Rev William J Spickerman, pastor of St Mary church Guests included V. J Paul of Cuyahoga Falls, state K of C deputy and Paul Gruhler of Dayton, state treasurer The guests and Thomas E Andrews, a member of the local council and secretary of the state council, gave brief talks on the work of the organization

Arrangements for the breakfast were in charge of the Catholic Action committee, Henry P Drake, chairman, L. A. Axe and Francis B. Huber.

The breakfast was served by members of Our Lady of Victory Circle No. 388, Daughters of Isabella involved 5,000 workers at the Western Cartridge Co. Plant in East Alton, Ill. The company and the AFL 10-union plant committee agreed to submit the basic issue, the question of seniority rights for returning veterans, to the Springfield district federal court.

STRIKES

New York City was threatened with a dispute which threatened to halt the flow of milk to an estimated 8,000,000 customers. The AFL operating engineers and firemen and oilers employed in pasteurizing plants set a strike vote for today over their demand for wages for 40 hours which approximates those previously paid for 48.

Detroit Relaxes

Detroit drew a breath of relaxation with only about 4,000 workers affected by a half-dozen scattered strikes. Ford recalled 33,000, and 1,000 AFL millwrights returned to reconverting auto plants on their acceptance of a 12½ cents hourly increase retroactive to Oct. 1.

The moribund War Labor Board had a White House date today to talk over the present labor-management difficulties with wages considered a likely topic of conversation.

GOD HEALED HIM

★ "I dressed his wounds, and God healed him," was the modest statement of the great French physician, Paré. It was he who first insisted on cleanliness and fresh air for his patients.

These things now are accepted as the minimum essentials for health, although in the sixteenth century they were revolutionary. Medical science has traveled a long road since the days of Paré. Some diseases have been eliminated, others drastically curtailed. Given full co-operation, physicians could eradicate many of the infectious diseases still rampant today. It is up to you to take advantage of the knowledge your physician possesses.

Your prescriptions will be promptly and accurately filled.

Walker claims that the fog developed by the special nozzle is more effective than water in quenching a fire.

Something to remember when you say "Welcome Home!"

Some of our boys have waited years to hear those two words.

What they've endured for the sake of hearing them is more than we like to dwell upon.

But those two words, "Welcome Home!" can become just an empty phrase if you forget, for one minute, your responsibility to the man you say them to . . . and to the several million men overseas who are still yearning to come home.

What we're talking about, of course, is your responsibility to continue buying Bonds—and holding on to the ones you already have.

Your purchase of Victory Bonds helps the man who's just come home, helps him in a very real way. For your money, in Victory Bonds, helps prevent inflation—and that, in turn, means security for him, and a better chance to get a job.

And remember this: It will cost plenty of money to maintain and supply our forces of occupation . . . to bring home the men whose period of service so richly entitles them to return . . . and to care for the sick and wounded in our Navy and Army hospitals.

No—the job isn't over. You didn't think it was, did you?

Then show that you know it isn't over! Show it to the boys who've come home—and to those who wish they could—by buying another Bond—today!

October's Heady Air

IF OCTOBER must be divided between its best and worst sides in equal parts—our wishful equation as two weeks of rain and gloom seem to be giving way to the famous "bright blue weather"—there can be no honest complaint.

Even with the blueness smeared out and the sun concealed by unseasonable midwinter gray, October produces a heady air without equal in the year's 12-month review of fragrances. Perhaps it only seems a little better when the sun shines, as perfume seems better when associated with visual loveliness.

The compound is mysterious only to those unfamiliar with the ingredients. To the rest of us, the secret is no deeper than the flavor of pumpkin pie or a cold Winesap apple. You take a goodly amount of earth, sprinkle with forests, fields, rivers and lakes, garnish with towns and cities and chill thoroughly.

Before serving, add a northwest breeze fresh from the arctic circle, a whiff of smoke and a promise of snow. This completes the mixture. Experts prefer to serve it with a trace of frost at sunrise, or sometimes with the twinkling of the first star at twilight. In any form, it is a great favorite—one of the really fine things produced in America.

Gift Horse with Bad Teeth

WITH a handful of dissenting votes by disgruntled leftists who wanted to slap special penalties on business enterprise, the House has railroaded a tax reduction bill into the Senate hopper. The public is supposed to be happy and grateful because more than five billion dollars' worth of taxation will be canceled next year.

The public is not supposed to brood over the incidental complications, such as the fact nothing is being done to cut down public spending, which means that the government will continue to pile up a crushing deficit at a staggering rate. By next June, the public debt—the money "we owe ourselves"—will amount to about $2,000 for each person in the United States. That is $6,000 for a family of three—$10,000 for five and so on. The nation's credit depends absolutely on the people's composite ability to discharge this obligation to one another. The instant the government faltered in its power to take care of the interest-bearing I.O.U.'s it has issued because it was short of cash, confidence would be shattered.

Naturally, all politicians look forward to winning votes by lopping off taxation. Meanwhile, cost economists, other than the impressionists who insist it is more interesting to add up the figures backward, are getting grimmer and grimmer about the possibility that political popularity may be traded for national solvency by an irresponsible legislature guided by partisanship, not prudence. Tax reduction is a gift horse with bad teeth.

Too Horrible To Endure

THE starting point and finish line of every race to reach a conclusion about the atomic bomb are marked with the same warning: This May Be The End of Civilization.

No one with an ounce of respect for the potentialities of atomic energy will deny that civilization's fate hangs in the balance. But it is not the first time civilization's fate has been in the balance.

At the end of World War I, there was the same kind of apprehension about gas warfare. During the years leading up to World War II, the horror of this weapon was kept steadily before the public as its best reason for shunning a recurrence of war. Yet, when war broke out, gas warfare was not employed by any of the belligerents, presumably because no nation dared to invite retaliation.

The really murderous implements of World War II were improved applications of weapons already familiar—the airplane, land mine, and rocket. The British, who had been splendidly equipped to withstand poison gas attacks, were maimed and killed by the thousands as Germany's buzz bombs and rockets followed orthodox bombing attacks; their antigas equipment never was needed. Fighting men trained to survive gas attacks were made casualties by something they still had no complete defense for at the end of the war—the land mine.

The potentialities of the atomic bomb are too horrible to endure. But in all probability another war would find the atomic bomb held in reserve, as poison gas was held in this one, while the killing and maiming were done with long-distance rockets and various types of jet-propelled aircraft.

While thousands walk off the job, a 102-year-old Buffalonian tells an interviewer he loves hard work. Here and there a few such evidences of the medieval persist.

Some believe the secret of the atom bomb will be known to everybody in two years, as it took only that long for the zombie to penetrate to the most remote cocktail spots.

It is understood that MacArthur is hereafter not to think aloud on matters pertaining to policy. It takes too long to get our state department back on the handle.

News Behind the News

By PAUL MALLON

Youth Draft Proposal Loses Favor.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15—The thermometer in both houses of congress went down to 32 degrees on the youth draft proposal of the Marshall report. No one said much about it but their private expressions showed fresh enthusiasm for a voluntary system. A rising sentiment for modernization of the National Guard was evident, a method Mr. Truman is reported to favor. Not much progress has been made on the bills to institute new Army and Navy academies, or to break the deadlock over the Marshall (May) bill, but in the debate on liberalization of service pay, strong sentiment was generated for a democratic way of operating the future army. Congress seems turning that way.

There was nothing in the Marshall report to make that tide stand still. The retiring chief of staff, for instance, said the principle he is advocating is "identical to that of coaching a football team." It is—precisely. But did you ever hear of a fooball team which was drafted away from its home for a year of service, on a fixed pay, and required to play? The democratic way in football as in all other matters has been generally favored in this country.

Advantages of Volunteers

The coach seeks people who want to play. He picks those who want to volunteer their talents. By that means he gets from them the enthusiasm and cooperation necessary to operate a successful football aggregation. He thus generates energy and spirit.

If a man does not wish to play a military or a football game he does not make a good player. He is a liability to teamwork, a malcontent who goes grudgingly about his task, doing only what is required by authority he fears. In war most young men want to get in on the game. In peacetime it means sacrifice of their chosen work, their education, and a year of their lives away from home and they cannot see the need for it, especially when untried democratic methods might furnish the Army all the strength Marshall considers necessary.

The democratic way of maintaining and training what we need for the utmost efficiency will require thoughtful attention of military authorities to work it out. Democracy always requires ingenunity to meet its problems. But it has not yet found one it could not solve.

Hearings Set

Even better news than this was hidden in the paragraph announcement that the Hill bill to modernize the entire war department is to be taken up for hearings next Wednesday. It had been buried so deep by covert opposition and then decorated with red tape by the joint chiefs of staff that not even the President could get the report recommending it, a report made last April (see columns a few days back disclosing the contents of the report; my fire started under the combined chiefs of staff seems to have made it hot enough in congress, if not among the sitting generals.)

Thus on two counts there are signs of the cracking of the old regime in the war department. The fighting generals and admirals in both services, and the young men with new ideas, are going to get a hearing for their bill, and the youth draft act is developing signs of senility.

Opposes Youth Draft

I fought nearly a year against the youth draft. My first analysis of its deficiencies was presented in this space last September, when the gears were all greased to rush it through, and no one whom I knew was interested in stopping it. I hit it again and again, as the Marshall (May) bill was delayed and delayed, but not until the congressional reaction to the Marshall report become noticeable, did I feel encouraged to expect success.

I have only been at the single department matter a week and it has reached the hearing stage. I will be hitting that subject again . . . and again.

Daily Bible Thought

If you are a selfish egotist with no concern for humanity's ills and needs, if you are uncharitable to others while excusing yourself, your church or lodge membership mean nothing at all: "By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love, one to another."—John 13:35.

England's Program for Women

By ADELAIDE KERR
Associated Press Writer

MARGARET HICKEY . . . She sat in for Uncle Sam . . .

UNCLE SAM sent Margaret Hickey to Great Britain to study John Bull's system for the re-employment and re-training of women war workers and veterans.

Miss Hickey (chairman of the Woman's Policy Committee of the War Manpower Commission and president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs) is back now with these observations:

"The great lesson Great Britain has learned out of the war is the importance of the human resources of a nation. England has made a human approach to human problems that surround demobilization.

Resettlement Centers

"For instance, they have Resettlement Advice Centers all over England—every community has one. These are not placement bureaus. They are attractive, well-furnished centers where people who were allied with the war effort can sit down in a homey atmosphere, talk over their problems and get advice on what track to take in future. There is less emphasis on filling out forms and more on getting at the problems."

Miss Hickey set aside a brief case stuffed with memoranda and went on with her observations:

"Britain is determined to get back her place in the sun on trade. The country is in a radically constructive mood. The goals are (1) Jobs for all who want to work. (2) A steadily rising standard of living. (3) Greater technical efficiency.

"The British plan to scrap old machines as fast as possible. The Higher Appointments Service, founded to fill top-rank vacancies —especially those in science and engineering—gets jobs for people, but it is also careful to place people for national interest.

"Finally, there is close cooperation between government and industry and between government and the workers, through committees and boards. In the cotton industry there is the Cotton Board; on the other side the trade unions. Both work with government."

Heads Training School

Miss Hickey, dark-eyed, white-haired and fresh-skinned, spoke earnestly. She is one of the few key women in America who are in touch with virtually all types of working women. She was born and educated in Missouri, is a member of the Missouri bar and now heads Miss Hickey's Training School for Secretaries. She founded the school during the depression.

She says that Great Britain is encouraging its women to stay in industry and has opened jobs by the thousand to them in export industries manufacturing textiles, boots, shoes, cutlery, etc.

"The war changed the whole complexion of life for British women," Miss Hickey said in conclusion. "They are more politically minded, more astute economically. Remember, in war they were drafted. They shared responsibility. And this will do them some good. You see it already in the attitude of the women. They feel they have a job and have gained confidence in their ability to do it."

Slumber Guaranteed

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. — The rhythmic clatter of wheels which lull railroad car passengers to sleep will be a thing of the past when new type sleeping cars go into production at the Philadelphia plant of the Edward G. Budd manufacturing company.

Sleeping on trains also should be easier and more comfortable in the future thanks to new type double bedrooms, which will be equipped with deep foam rubber mattresses on special steel springs, president Edward Budd pointed out.

The bedrooms, which will have fully encolsed toilets and shower baths, will also feature air conditioning, carpeted floors, and receptables for used razor blades.

Religion and Politics

By Raymond Moley

THE headlines had it the other day that General MacArthur had abolished Shintoism. The story below took a Gilbert and Sullivan turn. "What, never? Hardly ever!"

Generals can do many things, but they can't abolish religions. Not, in any event, generals of a country which has said that religion is a Constitutional guarantee.

And Shinto's durability is doubly assured, because it bears so lightly on the communicant. He is born in Japan and ipso facto he is a Shintoist. If another religion attracts him, he can join the still stay Shinto. He may become a Buddist, a Mohammedan or a Christian and, by a few simple observances, keep his authentic Shintoism, provided, of course, that there are no objections by the newly adopted faith.

Shintoism seems to have originated in the veneration of ancestors and in an ancient belief in deities embodied in the sun, in fire and in blossoms of shrubs and trees. Altars for the veneration of ancestors are in every Japanese home. On festal occasions, lanterns are lighted to guide the spirits of ancestors to their worshipping descendants.

Takes Little Time, Money

The Shintoism of a Japanese exacts little from his treasure or his time. At every moment of the day or night, Japanese people may be seen approaching the tens of thousands of shrines in the country. Worship is very expeditious. The faithful one deposits his hat and scarf, clasps his hands, prays no longer than a couple of minutes and then tosses a copper coin through the wire net to the priest. These prayers may be to a god, an ancester, a famous general of the past or to the Emperor. Most of all, the prayers go to the spirit of the conquering Emperor Meiji. No man can object to all this and no one can very easily prevent it.

In more remote times, Shintoism was nature worship. Prayers were directed not only to the sun, but to the moon, the rain, thunder and fire. Also, they were directed to stones and rocks and sergents andt igers and silkworm and the lowly louse. There was also totemism. A gorgeous mythology grew up, with immumerable stories, many of which have been collected in written forms.

The evil to which General MacArthur is directing his attention is state Shintoism, which is relatievly new in Japanese history. Simple worship has been, more and more, directed toward the Emperor and the Imperial Family. Those who skillfully directed national education in the past century contrived to use Emperorworship as a means toward totalitarianism. The people were led to believe that Emperor-worship had existed for a thousand years. As storms and silkworms and serpents lost ground, autocracy gained.

The Way Back

The way back from totalitarianism is not the abolition of worship, but the growth of democratic institutions. As Imperial brightness fades before the rise of representative institutions, the Japanese people will, no doubt, go back to more permanent objects of reverence. They will still have their mountains and moon and stars.

And, if political parties rise in a democratic society, they may find less and less that is holy in their leaders.

Perhaps, after the passing of a century or so, they may be holding festivals to their St. Tammanys and hang in their convention halls their Jacksons, Lincolns and Jeffersons, as we do. If they do, it may even be in simple imitation of our own semi-rational forms or political worship. But it will hardly be an inducement to war, which, after all, is our only important concern.

Secret Radar Device

CAMDEN, N. With the equipment, developed by Radio Corporation of America in Camden, Allied airmen were able to detect fixed obstacles such as mountains, and by means of pulses transmitted vertically downward were provided with an accurate indication of elevation.

The forested area of Canada is exceeded in size only by the forests of the U. S. S. R. and Brazil.

The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

The Great Dining-Out Crisis

THE situation with regard to restaurant diners-outers is getting worse by leaps and glares. For every person at a table in the better places there are a dozen standees waiting and glaring at him.

• • •

Anybody expecting to eat promptly has to get there by sunset or develop a technique as a restaurant "glarer." In New York, Washington and Chicago the regular diner-outers have found glaring too great a strain and are hiring professional glarers to do the job of tossing impatient and sneering looks at the table which happens to be the objective.

• • •

But good glarers are hard to find. A competent glarer should also be a good mutterer. A little muttering helps if any folks at a table are not readers.

• • •

A top-notch glarer should be the impressive type. He must suggest firmness and self reliance. And in his bearing there should be something of a triple threat. He must have a complete repertoire of glares, as follows:

• • •

Glare No. 1—This is most important and it there should clearly be the ultimatum. "Eat faster. Any dilly-dallying will not be overlooked. Swallow quickly and scram!"

Glare No. 2—This is hard to describe except to say that under such a glare the diner being glared at plainly gets the message, "So you're the type of crumb who expects me to stand around here while you fumble through the dessert!"

Glare No. 3.—"What! You dare to take time to cut up your meat before eating! Well of all things!"

Glare No. 4.—(with mutter).—"Listen, kid, foodle-doodling around over your coffee is not kidding anybody. And don't hang around over another cigaret."

Glare No. 5.—"Ask for the check and beat it! Time's a'wastin'!"

• • •

Any of the above messages are possible to convey by facial expression. Expert glarers can, in fact, get them all into one glare.

• • •

Nevertheless, it is obvious that restaurant patrons are not wilting under glares as easily as they were. They have developed an outer shell of resistance. Many are being encountered today who can finish their pudding under the killing stare of the more versatile glarers.

• • •

And the best glarers are being annoyed by the discovery of diners who can outglare a glarer. That's something.

• • •

A good counter-glarer should be able to get into his or her expression the message, "You will get this table over my dead body. I Fletcherize every mouthful. And I also take three cups of coffee and play with the finger bowls."

Take as Described

By Truman Twill

The great, big warm-hearted government in Washington, we have learned, is now clamping down harder on labels for the stuff we take to fix what ails us. New regulations, it is announced, give us customers complete protection. Self-medication isn't outlawed—not that—but made fool-proof.

In the spirit of safety, we now should throw out a thousand dollars' worth of potions and elixirs from the family medicine cabinet. But we aren't going to give it another thought, and if our great big thoughtful government wants to know why, this is why:

Because over a period of years every family gets a collection of medicines big enough to cure a sick horse and there is no percentage whatever in throwing it out because one never knows when a sick horse might turn up.

Besides, any attempt to take inventory and do a selective job of housecleaning would lead only to retrospection . this was the goomaw that Doc gave me for the twitch in the left leg. . . . can anyone remember what was wrong with this pink stuff had to be taken three times a day? The truth is that the real mystery about self-medication isn't the way the patent medicine people did or did not put on the right kind of labels, but the way stuff bought on prescription gets all mixed up as the years go by and yet almost no one ever dies from sampling it.

Take, for instance, that little envelope of pills back of the iodine bottle that says, "Take one each morning at breakfast." What did they do? What would they do? What finally happened that caused so many to be left over? How about taking the rest of them—now?

And whatever finally happened to the rash on baby's head and isn't it possible the jar of leftover salve which has been aging so many years might be just the thing for the cat's skin disease? This is the sort of thing that happens when medicine cabinets are cleaned out.

It's safer to take it for granted the food and drug administration is going to take care of everything from now on and let the dead bury its dead. Eventually, all the snake oil and patented elixirs and all the little envelopes and boxes of pills will be used up and everybody will be perfectly safe.

In the meantime, there will be nothing to worry about except growing bigger and better day by day with vitamins, always remembering to read the labels first. So you will know just what you're getting.

Laval Executed as Traitor

1. The stormy five-day trial which resulted in conviction and the death penalty began Oct. 4.

No. 1 Collaborator

After the fall of France in 1940 Laval, twice premier of his nation, became the prime advocate of collaboration with Germany and frequently expressed the hope for a Nazi victory in World War II.

Shortly after old Marshal Philippe Petain, acting under German pressure, had made him chief of the Vichy government, Laval branded France's 1939 declaration of war a "crime" and told the people in a broadcast that the condition for peace in Europe lay in friendship between France and her old enemy.

He made frequent trips to consult Adolf Hitler, sent many thousands of French workers to the Reich and took anti-Jewish measures. His Vichy government was described as the "traitor band" by Gen. DeGaulle, co-chairman of the French Committee of National Liberation, and other speakers at a mass meeting at Algiers in the summer of 1943. His name was booed at a Bastille Day observance there.

President Roosevelt denounced Laval as Hitler's mouthpiece and puppet following the Vichy regime's action in breaking off diplomatic relations with the United States as a result of American troops landing in North Africa.

Wounded by Assassin

At Versailles on August 27, 1941, Laval and his aide, Marcel Deat, were shot by a young assassin while the two were receiving registrations of anti-communists to fight in a volunteer force alongside Germany in the war against Russia. The legionnaires were taking oaths of allegiance in the Borgnis des Bordes barracks near the Palace of Versailles.

In the midst of the ceremony a young man arose and started firing, wounding both men. He was arrested immediately and identified as Paul Colette, a 21-year-old Norman, who said he joined the Legion of Anti-Communist Volunteers for the sole purpose of shooting Laval. The two collaborationist leaders were wounded gravely, but recovered. Colette was sentenced to the guillotine, but Laval and Deat interceded to have his sentence commuted to life imprisonment. There were reports from time to time of other attempts on Laval's life.

Laval, passionately anti-British as well as anti-Russian, said in a speech that reaching an understanding with Germany was "like an obsession" with him. He condemned England for aerial attacks on France and, exhorting French industrial workers to go to Germany, said "I desire Germany's victory because of the Red peril."

He assured workmen in a speech on the second anniversary of the French - German armistice that with a German victory "you will have nothing to fear but everything to hope from the regime which will be installed among us."

Patriots Oppose Plan

But there was considerable opposition to the plan for sending Frenchmen to work in Germany. In March of 1943 Fighting French patriots had battled openly in the streets of Paris and other French cities as 30 contingents of workers were shipped. A general police hunt was reported for numerous Frenchmen who had gone into the brush to escape requisition.

Reports from France to Madrid in the spring of 1943 said Laval had approved a German plan to use all French prisoners-of-war in Nazi war industries, these in addition to the many thousands of Frenchmen transported to the Reich.

Petain named Laval his vice premier and successor on June 12, 1940, less than a month after Petain took over the French government and sued for an armistice with Germany and Italy. But on December 12 of that year the old marshal suddenly displaced him. The only explanation was that it was for "reasons of interior policy." Although without official status, Laval continued to act as the foremost negotiator with the Germans in the occupied zone.

He staged a comeback in 1942 when he became chief of government and the dominant power, with Petain retaining the title of chief of state.

Powerful in Politics

A dark swarthy little man, with a ragged mustache, Laval nearly always wore a black suit with white shirt and white string tie. He always exercised much political power either through his place in government or by the strength of his opposition. He was not eloquent, but was master of small party politics and had a good memory which served him in harrassing his enemies by recalling publicly their mistakes.

Laval was born June 28, 1883, at Chateldon, Puy-de-Dome, in Auvergne. His father was a butcher and the story was told that young Pierre studied Greek on the meat wagon while making deliveries.

He always was a passionate pacifist and once was supposed to have said that of the five or six men in the world able to insure peace "destiny has placed me among them." He was known as a shrewd politician from the beginning and there was a joke that he was clever enough to be born with a name that spelled the same backwards, or the same from Left to Right as from Right to Left. Educated for law, he also did some newspaper work in Paris before he was elected mayor of Aubervilliers, a working class suburb, in 1914.

He received his first ministerial appointment in April, 1925, as minister of public works. He also served as minister of justice, twice as minister of labor, and prime minister and foreign minister in 1931-32 and 1935-36. He was elected senator for the department of the Seine in 1926. Laval visited Washington in October of 1931 to discuss war debts.

Tension Eases in Argentine as New Two-Man Cabinet Acts

By The Associated Press

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 15—Tension appeared to be easing in Argentina today as a result of measures taken by the nation's new "two-man cabinet" in an effort to restore public confidence and end the disorders which preceded Col. Juan Peron's resignation from the government.

One of the first moves made by Gen. Eduardo Avalos and Vice Admiral Vernengo Lima after assuming six of the 11 cabinet posts was to issue a decree yesterday reopening the national universities of La Plata, Buenos Aires and Litoral, which were ordered closed by Peron last month following demonstrations against his regime by students.

All professors and teachers who had been dismissed for supporting the students were ordered reinstated.

Other Action Taken

The two new strong men of the cabinet: :

1. Reinstated Rodolfo Barraco Marmol of Cordoba who was dismissed Sept. 29 for issuing habeas corpus writs to several political prisoners arrested on Peron's orders.

2. Lifted censorship restrictions recently imposed on the Argentine press.

3. Displayed their control over the nation's armed forces by a drastic shakeup of the army command.

4. Ordered police, who have been concentrated in the center of Buenos Aires, dispersed to other parts of the city.

There also were unconfirmed reports Avalos had asked all 14 provincial interventors, who were appointed by Peron, for their resignations. The interventors hold the authority of governors.

Approved by Farrell

All actions taken by Avalos and Lima were approved by President Edelmiro Farrell, whose resignation is being held by the two officers for use if they deem advisable.

The shift in the army command included the appointment of Gen. Francisco Sosa as commander of the Campo De Mayo garrison—a post formerly held by Avalos himself; the appointment of Gen. Santos Rossi as commander of the First Army division stationed in Buenos Aires and Gen. Ernesto Florit as director of the military college.

A high military source said Generals Alberto Guglielmone and Alfredo Escobar, leaders of a group which has been insisting that Farrell resign and turn the government over to the supreme court, had been confined to quarters.

Three Officers Quit

Three high-ranking army officers, all close associates of Peron, followed his lead in resigning their commissions.

They were Col. Filomeno Gelazco, former chief of the federal police, Brig. Gen. Bartolome Dela Colina, former executive secretary of aeronautics, and Lt. Col. Domingo Mercante, formerly executive director general in the ministry of labor and social welfare.

The newspaper La Nacion said Peron had been removed from the gunboat where he had been held under arrest and transferred to the naval base on Martin Garcia island in the river Plate.

Labor Union leaders in Buenos Aires denied rumors they planned to call a general strike in protest against the arrest of Peron.

This, the biggest peace news since two orders were issued for demobilization of a large section of the Red Army, was believed to have a possible bearing on the U.S.S.R.'s request of the United States for a $6,000,000,000 loan.

Navy Lists 28 Dead in Pacific Typhoon

By The Associated Press

The death toll from the typhoon which whipped across the west Pacific last week stood out at 28 U. S. Navy personnel and seven Japanese prisoners of war on Okinawa, and 184 persons in western Japan.

Fleet headquarters at Pearl Harbor said six enlisted men were killed and 23 injured in an unexplained explosion at a Navy receiving station on Okinawa Friday. A court of inquiry began an investigation.

The Navy also reported 70 missing and 423 injured during the storm. The U. S. Army listed no deaths but a "considerable number of minor injuries." The Army previously announced that 100 soldiers were injured.

Navy authorities in Washington said the Typhoon sank three naval vessels—the yacht Southern Seas, LSM (landing ship medium) 15 and YSM (Motor Minesweeper) 383 — beached 30 and damaged three.

Laval Judged As "Bad 'Un" Even in Pre-War Times

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

So Laval finally has collected the wages of his sins. One might wish that his trial hadn't been surrounded by such emotional scenes but there will be few who believe he wasn't guilty as charged.

I met and interviewed Laval in pre-war days when he was at the height of his power politically and financially. The first task of a reporter in doing an interview is to size up his man, and my immediate and definite impression was that Laval was a "bad 'un". He was smart and had great capabilities—but his god was Laval, and he was greedy for power.

The rebellions in Java and Indo-China, aimed respectively at French and Dutch rule, strike me as symptomatic of a trend which is part of our new era—and that is the transformation of the European nations' empires into commonwealths.

Empires On Way Out

In short, empires as such are on their way out.

Britain long ago recognized the signs and outdistanced time by inaugurating the British commonwealth of nations, to which she now is planning to add mighty India. Within this commonwealth the dominions have sovereignty but are linked together by ties of blood and mutual interest. There can be no doubt that other imperial governments must follow suit.

My idea that commonwealths are logical successors to the empires is based on the thought that the little countries—like Java, for instance—which are now dependencies, will still need the economic and military support of the "mother" country. That is, they will need it until the world reaches that happy day when peace is a fixture and small countries no longer need fear aggression from big nations. Then of course there's the bond of blood, which is so strong in the case of colonies settled largely by folk from the mother countries.

Java Complicated

The position on the island of Java—one of the world's garden spots—is complicated. There are said to be two factions in rebellion, both of them seeking independence. However, sanguinary fighting is proceeding and the nature of it can be seen from the report that the insurrectionists' weapons include poison darts and venomous snakes.

Java is a rich prize. It is a slim island but extends for 622 miles, and into this tight space are packed 45,000,000 people, of whom some 200,000 are Dutch. This tropical country produces rubber, tin, sugar, oil, quinine, coffee and many other things. It is the business center for all the Dutch East Indies.

Long before the rebellion the Dutch promised governmental changes in Java. However since the rebels decided to take things into their own hands, we shall have to await the end of the revolt to learn what sort o settlement can be made.

JAVA STRIKE CALLED AS FIGHTING GROWS

BATAVIA, JAVA, Oct. 15. — Indonesian nationalists ordered a general work stoppage in this capital of the rich Netherlands East Indies today as reports from the interior of Java told of fresh outbreaks against Dutch control. The Dutch offered to negotiate a truce.

Striving to maintain order in Batavia, British Maj. Gen. D. C. Hawthorn, allied commander in Java; invoked a local death penalty for looting, sabotage, the bearing of arms or refusal to surrender arms.

Skirmishers were reported from widely separated areas as the insurgent nationalists implemented what they called "a Mohammaden holy war against the Dutch infidels." Indonesian headquarters ordered seizure of all private property—corporate or individual—throughout Java.

(Two distinct factions exist among the Indonesians, the Hilversum radio reported. The broadcast said that Dutch dispatches from Batavia indicate last Saturday's "declaration of war" against Holland was issued by the Indonesian peoples' army headquarters and not by the Soekarno nationalist movement, which previously was believed to be behind the outbreak.

Japanese troops drove nationalists from the interior town of Garut after three days fighting.

Other Japanese troops, acting under an allied directive to maintain order, were ambushed by insurgent who had planted mines in the road.

Report Japs Used Live Prisoners in Bayonet Practice

By The Associated Press

TOKYO, Oct. 15—The use of live Allied prisoners of war as bayonet practice targets, while Allied officers were forced to look on has been fully established, General MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

The new record of atrocity was developed by the secret Allied translation and interrogation section of the Allied headquarters which worked through the war interviewing Japanese prisoners and sorting documents seized in battle zones. The secret unit, the existence of which was undisclosed until last week, included many Japanese-Americans.

One of the worst of the bayonet practice atrocities occurred on Guadalcanal where two Europeans and one Eurasian were used as practice targets while Allied officers were forced to stand in line and watch for six and half hours while the three were horribly mutilated and tortured by the stabbing, jabbing Nipponese, the announcement said. Enlisted prisoners periodically were paraded past the scene so they could see the death agonies.

VINSON ADVOCATES 5 BILLION TAX CUT

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15—Secretary Vinson today advocated a $5,000,000,000 tax reduction for 1946 but opposed house provisions which he said would cut off another $2,000,000,000 in 1947.

The treasury secretary testified before the senate finance committee, renewing the recommendations he made originally to the house ways and means committee for a 1946 tax cut of $5,175,000,000.

"The house bill," he said, "grants reductions that are reasonably close to that amount for 1946.

"But without further congressional action, the provisions of the house bill would operate to grant reductions of more than $7,000,000,000 for the calendar year 1947. It would write into law about $2,000,000,000 of tax reduction over and above the $5,000,000,000 reduction applicable in 1946.

"I believe that we should not today prejudge to this extent the tax needs of 1947."

Vinson laid down two guiding principles in considering tax cuts. The first was reductions must be limited because of continuing large expenditures which he said will continue "high for many months to come."

Vinson's second point: "the basic objective of tax adjustments at this time is to put us on the high road of peacetime full employment and maximum production. x x x From the taxpayers angle, a large tax is easier to pay with a high income than is a small tax with a low income."

Upper Sandusky Woman Cured After Vision Seeks "Normalcy"

By The Associated Press

UPPER SANDUSKY, O., Oct. 15.—Ninabelle Cross, who declared a vision of "God in a beautiful white robe" made her "completely well" after she had been bedfast for 16 years, says she wants more than anything to lead a normal, ordinary life.

But thus far since her recovery she's found that difficult.

The 38-year-old former schoolteacher said today she enjoyed ordinary household tasks most women find bothersome — washing dishes, ironing clothes and curling her hair.

But she hasn't fulfilled one of her greatest disires—to see a motion picture with sound.

Movies were silent when last she saw one.

Wants to Drive Car

Miss Cross said she also wanted to learn to drive an automobile, to ride in an airplane and go to church regularly.

Since her case was first reported, little more than a week ago, dozens of curious persons flock to her mother's home every day. The telephone rings incessantly and an average of 80 letters a day pour in from all parts of the United States.

Some persons congratulate her, others express doubt that a miracle occurred and invalids ask how they, too, may enjoy a miracle. Some physicians have suggested that her case was one of hysteria and that recovery resulted when she was convinced she was not organically ill.

(Her mother, Mrs. Andrew Cross, said medical specialists diagnosed her case as chronic meningitis.)

Sick Since 1929

To all who ask, Miss Cross tells her story. She fell ill of influenza in 1929 and later, she says, suffered periodic comas, paralysis, partial blindness, deafness, a back injury and a broken neck vertebra.

"On Aug. 10 of this year I became desperately ill again, and I remained in a coma until Sept. 4. It was during the coma that I had my first vision. It was of a person in a white robe. . . . It told me that if I had complete faith, Christ would perform a miracle."

"On Sept. 16. . . . the vision came again. But it . . . just passed through the room.

"Then, on Sept. 28 at 4 a. m. it came again, and this time its face was clear and looked like pictures of Christ. There was a halo around its head. It stood before me and said that I was completely healed and that there was still work for me to do.

"Then I felt that all sickness had passed off my body from head to foot. I got up, walked across to my mother's bed and wakened her."

Quick Payment of Bills Helped Keep Secret of Atomic Bomb

Office Officers Had Hard Time Paying for Items They Knew Nothing About.

FIRST OF A SERIES.
By HOWARD BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

OAK RIDGE, Tenn., Oct. 13.—The atomic bomb project set a record for quick payment of its bills. Its time averaged six months on big jobs against run of the mine periods running up to two years on government jobs. In fact, from a government angle, the bomb payments probably set a world's record.

But it was a finance officer's purgatory. The finance officer who paid the bills got only the top of the voucher. He could not see the items that made the total, couldn't check them, could not engage in the sport of catching flaws. For the details contained the secret of the atomic bomb.

The checking was all done, and carefully. The items were scrutinized by an auditing force at Oak Ridge, who knew most, but not all, of the atomic financial secrets. In each important bill there came a part that even they could not know.

This was reference to a secret letter. Not of the alphabet, but a written letter. One top accounting officer was allowed to know the contents of secret letters. He did that part of the audit checks. But even this top man was not allowed to know quite all of the secret letters.

Good Accounting System.

When he did not know, the bill was not paid. Not until after the secrecy could be lifted. In this way good accounting was satisfied. And despite this barrier the record was set. It was considered good business to make prompt payment, as part of the job of keeping harmony and thereby promoting secrecy.

The accounting was in charge of Lt. Col. C. Vanden Bulck, administrative officer of the Manhattan Engineer Works, the section of the army in charge of the bomb project.

The secret letter described a single bomb project. The letters were one of many ruses used to keep the bomb secret from getting out in financial gossip.

Insurance companies could not be permitted to rate the risks that they insured. They did not know even what they were insuring, or how great the hazard. They wrote policies under agreements that they would be paid in excess over the insured amount, if there should be an excess.

This plan resulted in very cheap insurance for the entire atomic bomb industrial development. Accidents were so well guarded against that they were few. Some of the nation's best medical scientists and doctors set up the safeguards for the unusual hazards like those from radioactive rays, and the protection of workers appears to have been very good.

Numbers Change.

Every accounting office normally had a station number. But on the atomic bomb project these numbers just floated around. Number 777 might mean Washington today and New Mexico next week. There were ten of these floating locations alone, in which the location never changed, but the number always did.

In fact, about the only numbers to cause worry were laundry marks on the shirts and collars of scientists who had been given code names that did not fit their laundry. This was not a worry for the accounting department and so far as recorded no spy got wise to the laundry marks.

If there were any heroes of the pen in the atomic bomb project, they were the civilians of the accounting department. Civilians made up 80 per cent of the force. Most of them volunteered to work, many a night, Saturday and Sunday without benefit of overtime.

PROOF FOUND FOR JAP CANNIBALISM

By The Associated Press

TOKYO, Oct. 15 — Japanese army orders approved cannibalism among Nipponese troops, if they ate the flesh of allied dead—but they were put to death if they feasted on their fallen comrades.

This was announced, with documentary evidence, Saturday by the same hitherto secret allied headquarters section which Friday disclosed the story of an American flier's beheading by a Japanese naval interpreter and announced the identity of the Japanese soldier who chopped off the head of a shackled Australian aviator.

Captured papers of the Japanese army showed some of its troops were convicted of eating their own dead and were executed. The papers called this "the worst possible crime against humanity."

This was the first official confirmation of cannibalism among Japanese troops, which had been reported sketchily from several fronts during the war.

Captured papers of the Japanese army showed some of its troops were convicted of eating their own dead and were executed.
